Statement on the Imran Awan Case

Washington, DC: Our office has received numerous media inquiries asking us to comment on various right-media theories about our client Imran Awan. We want to remind the people that this is a case that United States has brought against our client for Bank Fraud (see complaint). This is not a case between right-wing bloggers and twitter users vs our client. The most substantive piece of journalism on the case thus far, that we have seen, was published by BuzzFeed (here). We would like to further point out that the only accusation against our client in the criminal complaint is that he failed to disclose rental income on a tax return.
